Dedication

To

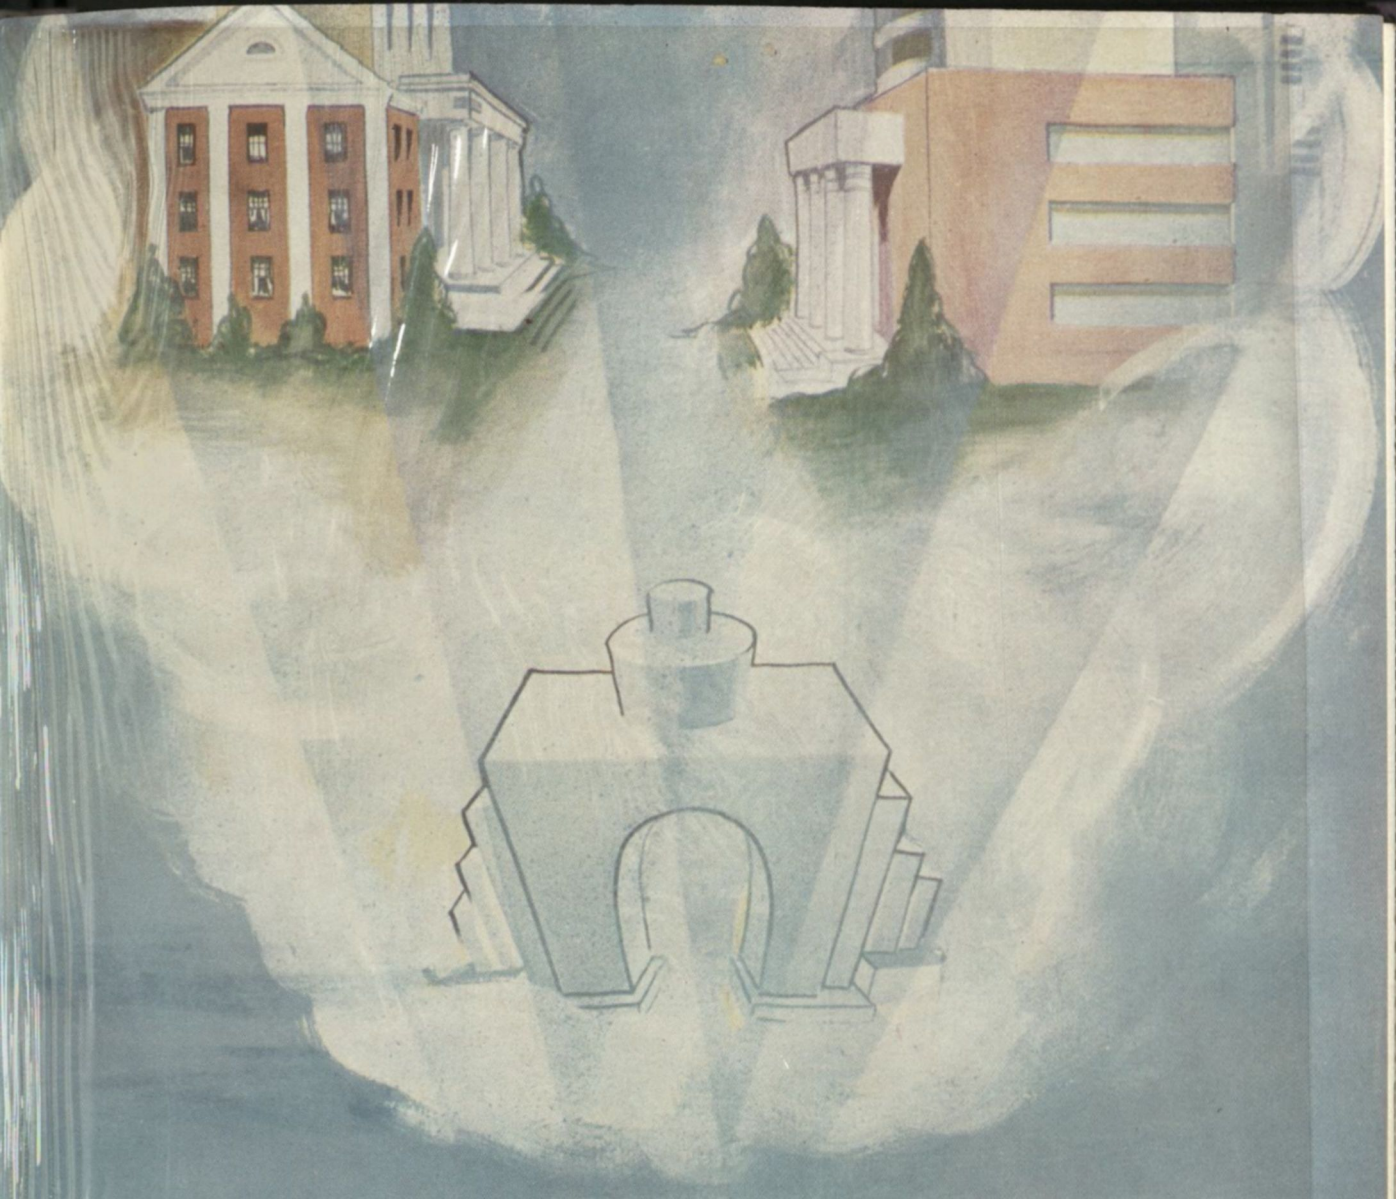

DR. AND MRS. S. L. AKERS

in whom we recognize a sincerely progressive outlook, and whose enthusiasm, loyalty, and friendliness have been to us ever-inspiring qualities.

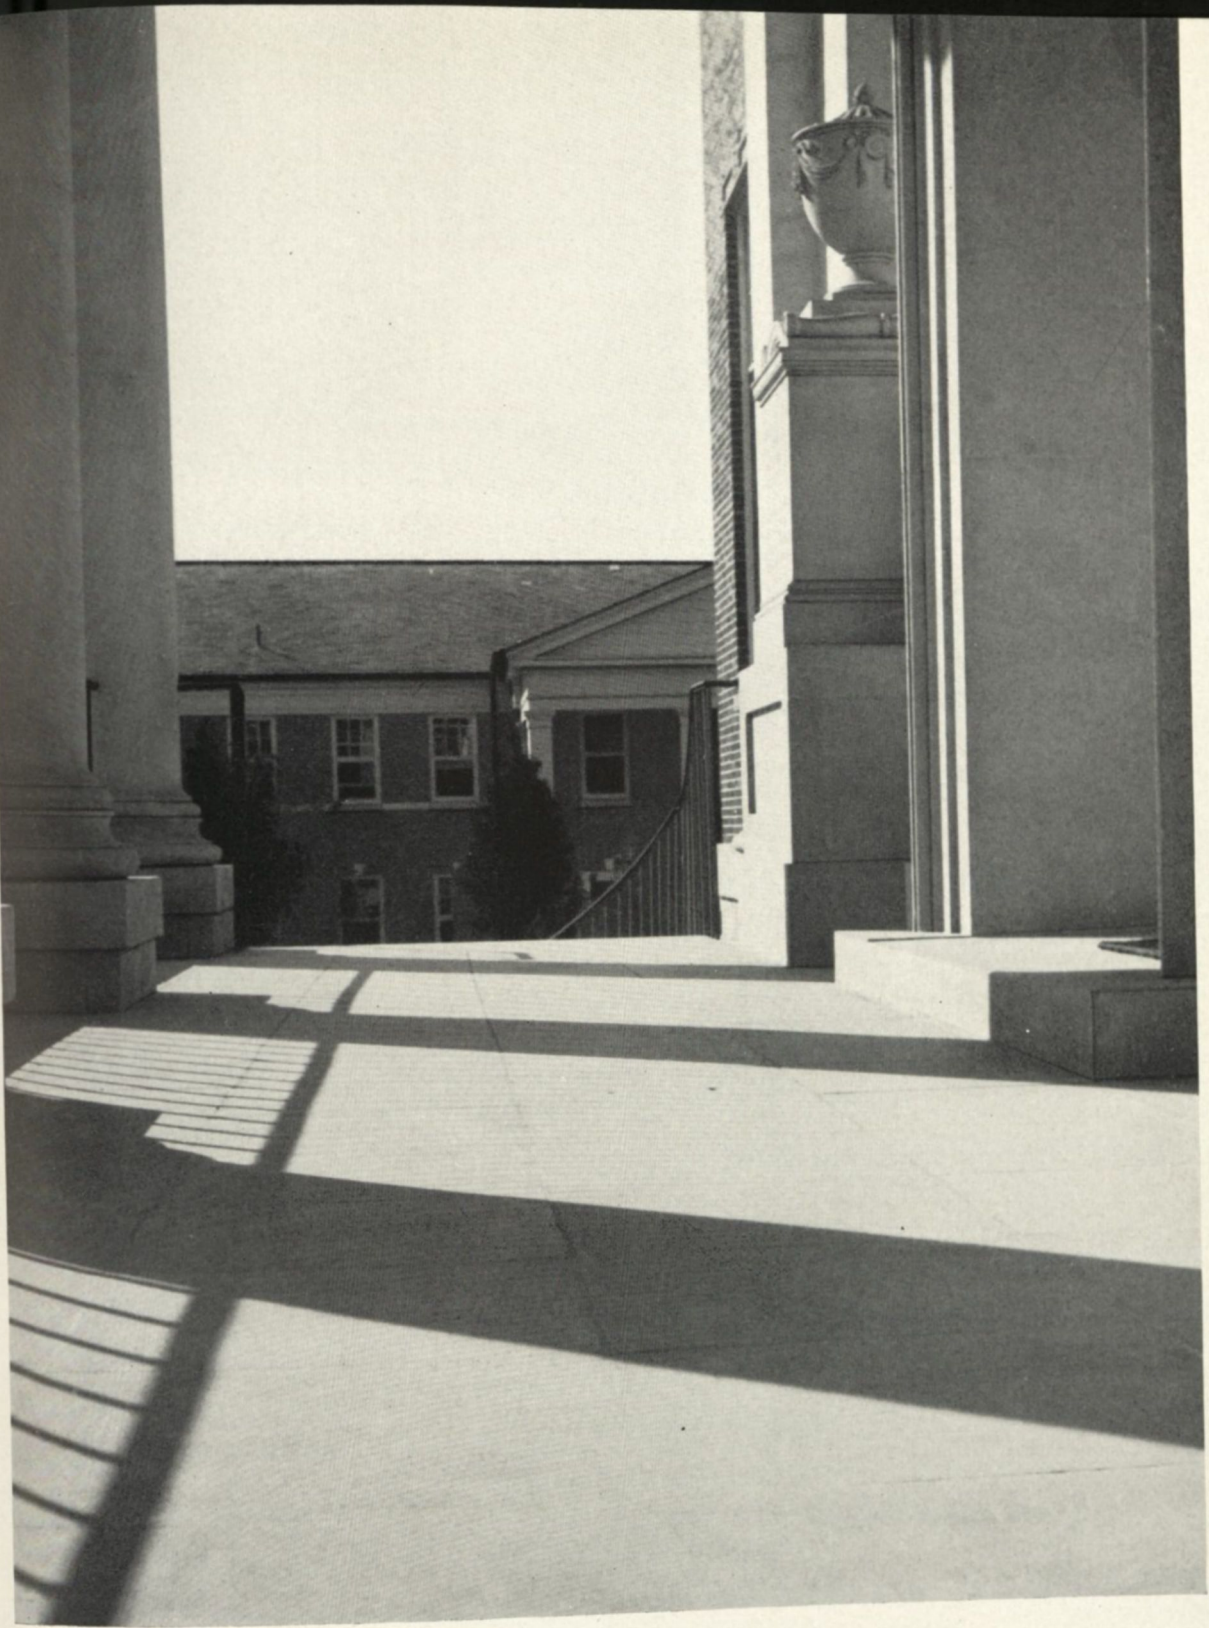

Foreword

We stand on middle ground . . . between the old century and the new. We have watched the pendulum swing back one hundred years and retrace its course . . . hesitate a moment . . . and then move forward, . . . slowly, into a veiled future. We could not assume to know what this future holds for our Alma Mater. . . Nor could we present seriously our theme, Wesleyan of the next hundred years. But the very selection of subject, depicted even in so light a vein, is an expression of our faith that the richness of past service has built a foundation which is firm . . . and enduring . . .

WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY, MAY 1, 2037, (International Interview). Today your interviewer attended the dramatic celebration of the close of the bi-centennial year of the world-famous Wesleyan University, pioneer college for women, located down in Macon, Georgia's capital. In the auto-plane next to mine on Anderson field, I recognized Miss Silver Smith, the very talented young actress of so many Theater Guild successes. She finished at Wesleyan this year, and she showed me something of the way the school is changing.

"You see, my great-great-grandmother graduated here just 100 years ago—quite a coincidence. Before she died, the family had many Home Talkies made of her, and I feel almost as if I knew the quaint old lady. One of the happiest parts of her life was that she spent here, and one of the pictures great-uncle caught secretly shows a conversation my great-grandmother and she were having about it. See?" She flipped on her plane movie, and onto the dashboard screen came two charming ladies.

"But Mother, this wonderful class of '37. It couldn't have had everything."

"Well, we had our share anyway. And if I do say so we certainly were a lucky bunch. We started off lucky. We had a swell class, and we liked each other. I can remember now just as well, trotting barefoot behind the Sophomores to the Pharm, and getting lost all the time. Say what you want to against rattin', it was fun; especially the Rat Court. We got syrup and eggs in our hair, and we were yelled at, but we had fun and anybody that says—"

"Yes, Mother, but remember what the doctor said."

"Well, anyway, I was just saying we were lucky. We won the soccer, basketball, and swimming championships. Kept them most of the time. When we were Sophomores, we lost Cile Miller and the swimming pennant, and the soccer cup, but Essie Davis was golf champion. And we started winning such things as newspaper contests too."

Interview — 2037 A. D.

"My, the junior year was fun! We won back the things we had lost and got several others. Sarah and Birch wrote a cup-winning stunt. Grace was elected President of the Dramatic Club—as a mere Junior. We won the soccer and basketball cups, and we were feeling right versatile." Her eyes gleamed brightly in the color film.

"Remember Edward VIII, young British King, and the lovely Mrs. Simpson whom he abdicated for? Well, they were responsible for our keeping the stunt cup our Senior year. We had settled down a bit but we still were young enough for sports. I'll never forget that last basketball game—the Juniors came mighty near stopping our four-year record—mighty near—nor that soccer championship.

"We had a good class, and our sponsor, Mrs. Akers, was a love. The Skull and Crossbones—and dear old Tri-K—could hardly have gotten along without Dr. and Mrs. Akers.

"Then came the deluge of centennial celebrations. They were rather-er-colossal. But I wouldn't have missed them for anything. We always had beautiful celebrations, we did. That last Thanksgiving banquet—" Her voice was growing misty. "It was so lovely. 'We have come to the end of four perfect years.' That is what we sang. I remember the tenor—and the toasts they gave to the Puritan maids. It was just swell, and your modern six-month term, and your travel and outside interests can never mean more to you than that did to me."

Here Silver interrupted, "I'm sorry but I must leave. We fly at six for England. Great-great-grandmother was just to give you an idea. Well, so long."

As her silver plane flashed toward Charleston, I thought about the difference in the Wesleyan of 100 years ago (when there was no international soccer champion and before it became the center of psychological and philosophical study) and this Wesleyan, and thought about this bright-haired child and her bright-voiced great-great-grandmother, and I wondered if underneath they weren't a lot alike.

All the way from Korea came Sally to study piano at Wesleyan Conservatory. When she graduated in June after breezing through four years' work in three, she received not merely her B.M. as if that were not enough, but a scholarship in piano as well. So she returned this year as a post-graduate and has been studying piano and organ. Sally accompanied the Glee Club last year and this year has been accompanist for the Department of Voice as well as the Glee Club. She is always appearing in Macon on some program, either as accompanist or soloist. Sally plays the organ in a quite satisfying way, accompanies in like manner, and is a soloist of some note. Why, if she cares to she could be a success in any of these.

Having the ability to do a number of things well could be Betty's formula for success. She transferred from Shorter her senior year. Since she has been at the Conservatory she has been most active in dramatic art and had a role in "Death Takes a Holiday," which was presented by the Speech Department in the fall. Betty isn't one-sided. She was senior representative on Athletic Board. She developed a nose for news and was Conservatory reporter on the Watchtower. With her talents, Betty has a future well worth looking forward to.

Better known as "Kat," she has faithfully represented the rather "retiring" town girls in athletics during her four years at Wesleyan. She lived at Rivoli her freshman year, but since then has enjoyed commuting. "Kat" is another athletic girl, having been on basketball team one year; swimming, three; soccer, four; a member of the "W" Club, and treasurer on Athletic Board. She was also a member of the Biblical Literature Club and Glee Club. Once "Kat's" great interest in Chemistry wavered, but the ship sank and Chemistry held its place. We hope your next one won't be from a diving board like in '36. Adieu, "Kat," and lots of luck.

Edith is the last of the famous Wesleyan Monroe family of Quincy, Florida. Despite her study of Psychology, she could never overcome her fear of horses. "Never trust a horse" was Edith's motto. You could always trust Edith, however, when it came to knowing everything to be known about History and Economics. In recognition of this she was president of the International Relations Club during her senior year. Edith was also a member of Biblical Literature, German, and Home Economics Clubs, and treasurer of the sophomore class.

Annie Ruth is the kind of girl who does things quietly, but who does them. In fact she does them so quietly that we had a hard time finding out anything at all about her. Finally we discovered that she was a member of the Biblical Literature, Hiking, and Tennis Clubs, in Student Volunteers, and on Sophomore Council. Almost any day you could see Annie Ruth hiking to the Polar Bear, or to town, either for pleasure, or else to win a "W." She bids fair to rival Dr. Rosser's walking record some day.

Carolyn has worried her way through her senior year at the Conservatory. Her worries began her freshman year when she was elected class representative on council. To soothe her feeling somewhat, she was elected Most Popular that year. Carolyn gets along with people right well. She was even elected Most Popular her sophomore year. Such popularity must be deserved, for she was president of the freshman and sophomore classes. She spends some of her time on dramatic art and has been in a number of productions of the Dramatic Club, of which she is a member. Carolyn carried the weight and worry of the Conservatory well; maybe twenty-five years from now she will be carrying the weight and worry of the world.

"Parky" is what we would collegiately term "a big shot." She began her career as vice-president of the freshman class and representative on Athletic Board. As a sophomore she became class president, and major sports manager in the athletic field. Then she was on the Watchtower and VETERROPT staffs her junior year. Some girl, eh what! In athletics, there's nothing, yes nothing, "Parky" can't do. Please note: soccer team, four years; basketball team, four years; swimming, three. "Parky" is to Athletic Board as Roosevelt is to the United States. And that Democratic smile unanimously cast her as Roosevelt in the senior stunt. She must have learned it at Warm Springs. In case you don't know where Warm Springs is, it's about ten miles from Greenville.

Conscientious is the word for "Dottie." When she has something to do, she does it. This trait has brought her laurels not bestowed on some with less willingness to work. She was secretary and treasurer of the class her sophomore year. She spends most of her spare time in dramatic art, and has taken part in several plays presented at the Conservatory. She is also member Dramatic Club. Her interest in dramatics and willingness to work should make her successful.

Receiving an engagement ring and being president of the senior class were outstanding occurrences during Helene's senior year. Her junior year she was an officer in the class as well as in the Glee Club. She majored in piano and was a member of the Piano Club her senior year. Helene goes in for the athletic as well as the artistic. She has been active in basketball and soccer during her years at the Conservatory. Her life work won't be entirely devoted to music. Her ring settles her future!

Mary Julia is one of our best all-round athletes. The nice thing about her is that she is consistently good. Her main love in the sports department is soccer. She was captain of her team the freshman and sophomore years. She made her "W" that first year, because she was on the basketball and swimming teams too. She's kept up the record she started, and has been on all her class teams since. But she proved her versatility by being on the Debating Council four years, on Freshman Commission, on Y Cabinet as a sophomore and junior, and on Activity Council as a senior, and topping that by being managing editor of the Watchtower one year.

"Gerry" is our champion laugh-provider, with wit as sure-fire as that of Gracie Allen. We have to like her because she keeps us from joining the ranks of the complete pessimists. And we'll have to admit she's pretty good in athletics, too, having been captain of the basketball team three years and on the soccer team as many times. Then she earned one of those awe-inspiring "W's," which gave her entrance into the exclusive "W" Club. To prove she could be judicial, as well as athletic, she got herself elected class representative on Honor Council twice and then was secretary her junior year. Her various other interests include the International Relations Club and the Home Economics Club.

Miriam, like Abraham Lincoln and other famous persons striving for an education, travels five miles each day to school. (Though means of transportation are somewhat different, the principle is the same.) She is a member of that Unorganized Sisterhood of Macon Girls. Miriam has graced Wesleyan's classrooms only two years, since she transferred from Bessie Tift in 1935. In these two years she has been an upstanding member of the French Club, never yet missing a "parlez-vous Francais." Miriam has that rare gentle blonde beauty which is so soothing, and should make an ideal wife for some famous man with an artistic temperament.

Carleton's loquacity will insure her success anytime. She can talk herself out of anything, or others into anything. This ability, which is handy in selling ads, gained her the Conservatory business managership of the annual. Now and then she pauses long enough to piddle in Glee Club. As secretary and treasurer of Student Council, she has been most obliging about supplying funds for banquets and the like. Also she was secretary and treasurer of the senior class. To take her mind from financial matters, she goes out for athletics and has been outstanding in basketball and volleyball at the Conservatory. And with her talent for music, she may develop into a Myra Hess, or another Novaes. Who knows?

You've heard about people who are Jacks-of-all-trades and good at none? But did you ever hear of a dual personality that could be a successful Mae West, and yet display such athletic ability as to make soccer and basketball teams four years and be on Athletic Board for three? Then, meet "Pinkie." In addition, she has been on the Watchtower and Wesleyan staffs, and is being highly successful as Telegraph correspondent. Someway she has found time to wedge in scholastic pursuits, was a junior marshal, and president of the senior class. With that red hair and Mae West drawl, "Pinkie" ought to get somewhere in life, umh-humh.

Grace got here a year late, having gone to G. S. C. in Americus a year, but has made up for lost time. She started off easily, joining the Dramatic Club and landing on Activity Council. But by the time she was a junior, she was president of the Dramatic Club, an honor heretofore claimed only by seniors. She was on Honor Council, soccer and swimming teams, and was a commencement marshal besides. It's no wonder that this year she heads our Y. W. C. A. Of course by now she's a past grand mistress of dramatics, and it looks like we're fated to see Grace Freeman in lights—unless she changes her name.

Mary Glenn, that brunette, is a girl of few words. But when she does say something it's a friendly greeting or phrase you're glad to hear. She has been another of those enthusiastic walkers, joining the Hiking Club as a sophomore. She has also been in the International Relations Club, and was on Y Cabinet three years. Anyone as quiet and industrious as Mary Glenn will never end up her days in any other way than as some man's dutiful wife.

We had to elect Anne president of Student Government this year because she has more sisters than anybody else, though the fact that she was on Honor Council her freshman year, treasurer of Honor Council her sophomore year, and vice-president her junior, might have had something to do with it. As soon as Anne walked in the gate singing the Alma Mater she was singled out for president of Freshman Commission, and put right on Y Cabinet that same year. Anne has been a staunch member of the soccer team for three years as well as an ardent debater. Her kingly performance in the stunt this year is surpassed only by her dignity as chief commencement marshal last year. Once a palmist told her she would be of world-wide fame before the age of thirty. She'll probably grow up to be a philosopher, but we won't restrict her to that. For the truth about Anne, see page 101.

If you judged by "Kat's" demeanor, you might think she's a carefree person who enjoys life all the time. As such, it's amazing the number of things she gets done. This year, as postmistress, she's seen that we get that all-important item, mail, and has put her argumentative powers to work as president of Debaters' Council. As further exercise for her voice, she was in the Glee Club three years. Y work has been her specialty since she was a freshman, and this year she was chairman of worship. Besides all this, "Kat" has been a Commencement marshal and an intercollegiate debater. We could go on, but you can probably judge by now that she's a pretty efficient person.

Rebecca is one of those quiet girls whom you like more and more as you know them better. Like a tailored dress, she wears well. She transferred from Brewton-Parker, and we're glad she came. She has been in Dr. Rosser's Biblical Literature Club two years, the International Relations Club two years (ask her about Spain's war), and the Home Economics Club two years. Reckon she'll probably be a woman diplomat, or else just a cook for some man.

Sarah has done pretty well everything interesting at one time or another. She's one of the few seniors who are holding out for a career. Now, though, she's calmer about it and is defending the idea that a woman can handle both a career—and a marriage—successfully. And in spite of her size, if anybody can, it's probably she. With her intelligence, poise, and sense of humor it has seemed easy for her to write for the Watchtower, Wesleyan, and VETEROPT, and be co-author of the winning junior and senior stunts, and manage to keep up soccer and Scribes on the side. She has always managed to find a lot of adventure and crazy excitement in living, and her friends aren't expecting her to lose this capacity with age.

Sara was a knockout as Queen Mary. But then she's had plenty of practice queen-ing it over the lowly males. Sara became known as a man-hater during her first years at Wesleyan,—but, ah me, how she has changed. She's been active in several clubs, was on Activity Council, was class secretary her junior year, and a VETERROPT staff member. And she showed us this last year that she not only had brains but brawn as well by making the soccer team. If McClelland Barclay doesn't discover Sara's possibilities as a model, we feel sure it will be because some millionaire husband had discovered her first.

June, that brown-eyed girl, entered Wesleyan as a very conscientious student. Her freshman year was spent in concentrated study. Then as a member of the Town Girls' Association, she decided to brave forth in collegiate athletics and played on the famous hockey team of '36. Between cutting up bugs for her biology major and reading parallel for her history minor, June danced gaily in our May festival and the Centennial pageants. In concluding her college career, she has seriously taken up cooking and belongs to the Home Economics Club. Girls, you may draw your own conclusions about this domestic trend.

When in doubt, call Barbara. She'll either solve your problem or make it so complicated you'll forget what it was in the first place. Barbara was on the Watchtower staff as a sophomore, and then did all the hard work as Watchtower associate editor her junior year. Last summer she edited the Handbook all by herself. This year she is a member of the Wesleyan and the VETERROPT staffs. So of course she is a Scribe. She won sophomore honors, was a junior marshal, and has been a pillar of the French Club for three years. Barbara can write like nobody's business. When the editor of Harper's gets a sample he'll probably fire his whole staff and make Barbara it.

Martha is another one of those people who tire you out by doing so many things themselves. But if we had had her in the dormitory—well, that might have made another story. She was oh-what-a-goal-keeper on the soccer team four years, was on basketball four years, and a member of the "W" Club. She won sophomore honors, was a junior marshal, and was town girl representative on Honor Council three years, besides being Dean Smith's able assistant three years. Now she ought to go into retirement for awhile.

Anne's among the musical people in our class and spends a great deal of her time and energy in playing the piano and in singing. She transferred from Young Harris College when she was a junior, and during the two years here has been a member of the Glee Club. The Atlanta Club and Biblical Literature Club have claimed a lot of her attention, too. She's one of those fortunate people whose mothers came to Wesleyan and so was eligible to the Granddaughters' Club. Anne's been true to one heart interest since we've known her, and if she doesn't join the ranks of our marrying contingent, maybe she'll make us famous in song.

"Oh sleep, it is a gentle thing,"—so said Helen,—“but it's even better in classes.” An occasional doze didn't affect her scholarship, however. She was one of those who got their time reversed and slept all day and stayed awake all night. Well, such is life (for some) at Wesleyan. Helen was a member of the Biblical Literature Club, a member of the French Club for three years; Home Economics Club; Tennis Club; Sophomore Council; and a junior marshal. So you see, Helen ought not to sleep her life away.

Mallary is our dancer, of whom we are justly proud. In May Day she was the Gypsy Queen, and in both Centennial pageants she did solos. Besides this she did tap numbers for our cabarets. Along with this art of the dance, Mallary was one of swimming team's stars two years, and on basketball team twice. She was also a member of clubs—the Biblical Literature, French, and Home Economics, of which she was treasurer this last year. It's a pleasure to hope that at least one of our class may some day turn out to be a second Pavlova.

Margaret is one of those people a class can't do without. It didn't take long to discover her capability and since then she's served on practically every class committee, usually as chairman, besides being a member of Freshman Commission; Activity Council; treasurer of the Y during her junior year and vice-president of the junior class. She too, was a junior marshal; she, too, won sophomore honors, and she, too, has a wedding coming soon. She has been on the advertising staff of the Watchtower, and on soccer and swimming teams. And just to prove that Margaret is really a successful business woman, this year she has been advertising manager of the VETEROPT and treasurer of the Senior Class.

We might have been sane before we knew Betty; certainly we've never been sane since. She transferred from American University and Wheaton College, Illinois, her junior year, and since then we've found ourselves in numerous harum-scarum scrapes instigated by Betty. As fire chief, she unmercifully ousts us into the icy-cold winter nights. We elected her sergeant-at-arms this year to give an outlet for her energy, and as such she aroused plenty of pep in us. Betty has been a member of Activity Council and of Student Volunteers. She usually has a mischievous gleam in her eye, meaning she's just heard a good joke, or is planning one.

Margaret has annually vowed she would not be with us the next year. Here it is the end of four long years, and Margaret is still intact, we're glad to say. By spurts Margaret is very enthusiastic and has accomplished quite a lot. She was on the soccer team in '35, the swimming team three years, a member of the Spanish Club, and of the Home Economics Club. This year Margaret loyally protected the gym, being a sort of combination life-saver and bicycle-checker-outer. In case you'd like to know the time, just ask Margaret. The donor of her new timepiece is the explanation of that dreamy look in her eyes.

Martha is one of those light-hearted girls who couldn't be downed by anything, not even exams, nor all the rainy weather we had. She has three things she particularly likes and in which she has been very active—the Vesper Choir, having been in it two years, the Georgia Methodists Students' Conference, of which she is vice-president, and practical joking. But the worst joke was on herself: she got rides to the Conference at Athens, for everybody except herself—though she insisted it was due to pure altruism on her part.

Helene transferred to us from Junior College in Augusta. Although she was very quiet we finally realized that we had gained a good girl. As soon as she got here she began to enter into things. Her first year she was in the Biblical Literature Club and was made a junior marshal. As a senior Helene has been program chairman of the International Relations Club, and on the current event committee of the Student Volunteers. These interests, plus her major in history and her quiet manner, practically insure that Helene will turn out to be Ambassador to somewhere.

Rose always does the unexpected thing, so she'll probably turn out well. She was on soccer team four years, basketball four and swimming two. Otherwise she's lazy. She played around on the Watchtower and the VETERROPT staffs one year, and on the Wesleyan three. She finally browbeat her way into the Scribes as a mere sophomore, and later to the editorship of the Wesleyan. After that, she browbeat her roommate for editorial help. And she was co-author of the winning stunt this year. As Stalin, in the stunt, she was so Russian she now goes by the name of Roseovitch. Fifty years from now, if not late for appointment, she will no doubt be named editor of the New York Times.

Every time we look at "Judy" we get dazzled by that ring she brought back Christmas, and we forget that she's concerned with trivial things like college, etc. But in spite of her overwhelming outside interests, she has acquitted herself rather credibly here. Her friends evidently think she manages to get along all right, and at one time or another have entrusted the business affairs of both the Watchtower and the Wesleyan to her hands. "Judy" has a touch of the artistic in her, too, and has been in the Dramatic Club and three stunts, as well as being one of the most potent forces in the Glee Club. She has a blues voice, and we think she's got something there.

It took three trials to prove to Marjorie that the Oldest was also the Best for her. She spent three years at Asbury and Transylvania Colleges in Kentucky. Marjorie's modesty prevented our finding out how many really outstanding things she had done there, but with a little detective work we discovered that she'd been a big office holder at both places. Marjorie is one of those quiet, charming people, who entered our life here at Wesleyan very unobtrusively; in fact, so unobtrusively that we were amazed to find she was quite as good an Archbishop of Razzberry as she is charming—that's saying quite a lot.

Wesleyan ought to give a major in geography. Then wouldn't "Scotty" shine, with all that knowledge of China? Really she's very interested in—China. She's also pretty good, musically speaking. People have been known to corner her and insist on being played to by the hour. "Scotty" has helped with Y work every year, and been a boon to the Watchtower two years, writing under her own heading like the big shots. Of course, she has tried other things, even hockey, and was music chairman on Y Cabinet, and on Activity Council, as well as being an under-secretary to the President. But that isn't what we are thinking about. We're afraid she's going to run away and be a foreign missionary or a Shanghai Lil if the fleet doesn't hurry in.

When Evelyn transferred from Andrew College, Cuthbert, her junior year, she brought all her good qualities with her. She started in doing things right away, and the basketball team found her a very efficient guard both years. This year she played soccer for the first time, and was able to keep right up with the veteran players. Then she was a member of the Home Economics and International Relations Clubs, and to round out her activities, was elected to Activity Council. Nobody's ever quite so amused at her ups and downs in heart affairs as is Evelyn, and her sense of humor will carry her a long way. It was a break for us that she decided to spend her last school days at Wesleyan.

"Beth" has been the envy of us all for four years. She's one of those people who never seem to get a hair out of place, and her neatness has put us all to shame. With very little effort, "Beth" managed to play away three years of her college career—taking classes effortlessly, dabbling lightly into clubs, filling in spare time with reading and having—all in all—a capital time. This year, though, it's a different story! "Beth" has settled down to history with its attendant bugaboo, parallel, and to being business manager of the annual. Always inclined to be foot-loose, "Beth" is planning a little trip to Europe this summer. Lookout that you don't get all tangled up with a French count or an Austrian psychoanalyst!

We aspire to much in this world, but there's one achievement we've put in our list of "Things That Can't Be Done." That is to get as many things done in as short a time as Nina does. She stays at least a month ahead of us in everything from news to studying, and yet seems to have time on her hands. Some of that unquenchable energy was used in being a star basketball player three years and in soccer two years. Then among her numerous activities have been the French, Tennis and Hiking Clubs, and Sophomore Council. She exercised her way into the coveted "W" Club, and was elected class representative on Honor Council this year. She's also been our vice-president.

An understanding of people and the fact that she is a good listener help make Mary Tanner the kind of person it's good to be around. But Mary doesn't spend quite all of her time listening to people's troubles. She has plenty of talent for art and spends some of her time in the Art Studio. Mary transferred from LaGrange her senior year. If people don't worry her to death before then with their woes, Mary can commercialize on her art and some day will be illustrating for Vogue or one of the other smart magazines.

"Teeny's" ring proclaims that she'll soon leave our old-maid ranks. From the emphasis she's given home economics lately, we're fairly able to prophesy that "Pete" won't suffer from the effects of her cooking. 'Teeny's" not lacking in musical talent, having been in the Glee Club three years. Then she played for us at the Thanksgiving banquet and made our tears more harmonious. She deserted us one year for Virginia Interment, but came back in time to be an outstanding member of the Biblical Literature, International Relations, and Home Economics Clubs. She doesn't do badly scholastically, either, as evidenced by her being chosen as a junior marshal.

Townsend doesn't treat us right. She sings when we should study and we flunk because we stop and listen. Her freshman year they put her on Freshman Commission and they decided to keep her on Activity Council the next year, as vice-president of Y her junior year, and music chairman this year. And, oh yes, she writes too, as a member of Watchtower and the Wesleyan staffs, and president of Scribes. She was class sergeant-at-arms two years and was junior marshal. Townsend not only sings, herself, in the Glee Club, but teaches other people. She was first to organize the side porch harmonies into a well trained choir. Some day we'll probably be hitch-hiking to the Metropolitan Opera House to get her autograph.

Lois has always been a smart student. As proof, look at the way she finished up a whole semester before the rest of us did, and is already holding down a good job, while we're still wondering what's going to become of us. Lois has belonged to several clubs, including the Glee Club, Literature Club, Classical Club, and Biblical Literature Club. But mainly she has been interested in the Student Volunteers. She was their secretary here one year, and as a senior she was state secretary. She has done especially good work in philosophy and psychology, and we won't be surprised if she writes a book, or turns out to be an eminent philosopher some day.

Margaret's almost a phenomenon, in that her aptitude for math and music are almost equally superior, and somehow we never thought of the two as going together. She has that certain soothing touch on the piano that makes people want to listen; and the magic touch evidently extends to other activities, too, for she accomplishes things before we even know about them. Margaret was practice superintendent three years, and then, lest the musical atmosphere should overcome her, joined the Hiking Club and Tennis Club. The powers-that-be must think her scholarship is all right, since she was chosen a junior marshal. She was a member of Sophomore Council and for two years has employed her diplomatic powers on the Church Relations Committee.

"J. C." and her little blue Chevrolet have been a familiar pair on the Wesleyan campus now for four years. Though she hasn't lived with us she has taken part in a number of campus activities—as a member of the Watchtower staff, hockey team, Tennis Club, and Home Economics Club. Certainly is peculiar how all these Macon girls take to home economics so ardently. Must be something there. Last year "J. C." was a Commencement marshal. For a long time she has been noted for her keen sense of humor and dry wit, though nobody's had anything dry around here this winter.

Marion was a little late getting here. It seems she stopped off at Mercer for three years on the way. Over there she was good at starting things, being a charter member of the Mercer Co-Ed Athletic Association in '33, and controlling things, being president of the Woman's Student Body, '34. Besides which facts, she rounded out her school term by being a member of the Dramatic Club and basketball team. Marion came here her senior year, and, from all we can ascertain, is doing nobly, but we do wish she had hurried.

We keep wondering how we got along without "Billie" before she transferred from Andrew College, Cuthbert, her junior year. As a basketball player she's just about invaluable and has added a lot to the laurels of the red and white. She helped make our stunts a success, too, and was on the soccer team her senior year. We elected her secretary of her class this year, and in addition to these activities she's been a member of the French Club. "Billie" proved she could "measure up," as a tapeworm in the junior stunt, so well that her selection for the senior stunt was inevitable. As Henry Ford in it she sold trucks so successfully that we feel sure she can make a good business woman if she wants to.

For a maiden that likes a little shut-eye as well as Harriet does, it's amazing to contemplate the number of things she's been able to do in her four years at Wesleyan. We wonder just how she managed to sandwich in four years of soccer, three of basketball and three of swimming, along with activities in three clubs, presidency of the junior class, being on Athletic Board, junior marshal, on VETERROPT staff and, to hear her tell it, a thousand committee meetings, between her habitual forty winks. Judging from her convincing performances as a Bed Bug in the junior stunt, we wouldn't be at all surprised some day to hear that she's become famous as the inventress of a portable mattress.

Perhaps Martha Holt is such a "retiring" girl (Note: See last sentence) because she spent one year in a Bishop's home. She was a member of Freshman Commission her first year here. The next year she traveled to Texas to attend school there. But she decided that one year away from Wesleyan was enough, so she came back to us as a junior. Between frequent week-end trips to Fort Valley, she has found time to be in the Biblical Literature and International Relations Clubs, and in the junior class stunt. Martha is one of Wesleyan's best-informed on topics in current magazines, due, as we mentioned, to her retiring way—each afternoon.

Clara, the old intellectual, is at last, by her teachers' grace, completing her four years of college. She has done well by herself scholastically, even if her excuses for tardiness due to bad roads and bad tires were rather flat. They finally decided she'd better just move to the college, and now we're glad they did and she did. She has been in the French Club three years; on Y two years; basketball team, two; soccer team, four; was a junior marshal, and won sophomore honors. Then, just to round out a forty-eight-hour day, Clara was on VETERROPT staff, and made herself invaluable in the Alumnae office. And, oh yes, she was a typical Mussolini in the stunt this year. Maybe she'll grow up to be a dictatoress.

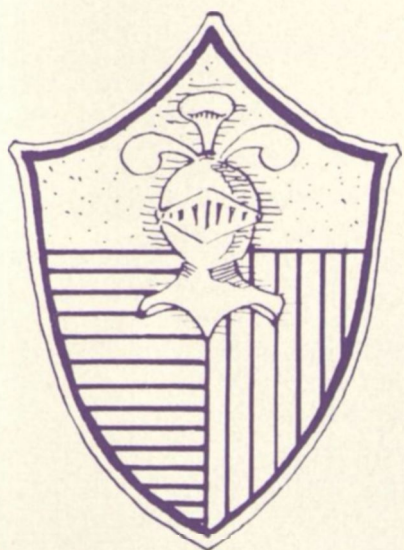

Roy's great-grandfather was a distinguished President of Wesleyan. But Roy is still a little young for such a position, so he has distinguished himself in quite another capacity as the only co-ed at the Conservatory. He came over from Mercer his senior year to enroll here. Organ is his specialty, and he gave an organ recital his senior year which proved definitely that he specialized wisely. Roy could open a school for young ladies with the knowledge and experience he has gained this year at the Conservatory. However, instead he will probably be appearing in Concert one of these days in New York.

History as Inspired

"ALL THE WORLD'S A STAGE, and all the men and women merely players: they have their exits and their entrances." That was Shakespeare's idea, and perhaps there's something to it after all.

First curtain of our Wesleyan drama disclosed us like "the whining school boy with shining morning face" going as snail-like and unwillingly as we dared wherever the ominous sophs commanded. Then, taking heart, we showed our red and white rivals a few things about soccer, and walked off with the loving cup. Just to keep our heads within the bounds prescribed by our hats, we let someone else win the stunt, and also the basketball championship. But we were only being generous; so we ended the year with a sweeping victory in the swimming meet.

Act two found us as sophomores, "full of wise saws and modern instances"—to impress the timorous newcomers (who, by the way, refused to be altogether impressed). Although our enthusiasm knew no bounds, our triumphs did. However, the spirit of '38 was not to be downed by a few paltry defeats—and we did give the Tri-K's a bad scare at basketball. President Tillman, chief director of the parts we played, still had reason to be proud of her lavender and whites.

Now another year has come and almost gone. "With spectacles on nose" we have settled down to the dignified position of upperclassmen and students. (Because someone told us about a thing called "quality credits".) And little sisters cause us to realize how extremely aged we have become. President Barnes is directing our theatricals admirably this year, and though we made a misstep at soccer, we did credit to our name by winning second place on stunt night.

We are looking forward expectantly to that "last scene of all that ends this strange, eventful history," which (we hope will not be "sans everything"), but with a little knowledge and wisdom—and, anyway, with a sheepskin.

Sophomores'

SWING IT CLASS OF '39. And with this command from our swingmaster, Miss Bartlett, we have whirled in a storm of events this year.

Wait a minute though. Let's swing back the pendulum to last year when we were mere freshmen. Those first unforgettable days, when we wandered about so uncomfortably ignorant, spring vividly into our minds. The sophistication of the authoritative sophomores certainly made an impression on us; however, the gameness we exhibited that memorable evening we accompanied them to visit their dead friend, along with our winsome wiles, soon won them over.

This September it was with a great deal of serenity and nonchalance that we swung into our long coveted place as sophomores. The success of our Hallowe'en banquet certainly put us on our smiles. Then our soccer team, while it left no special mark in the way of scores, left a trail of fine spirit of co-operation and splendid sportsmanship. And under the leadership of our persevering president, Bobbie, the reputation that our class had of being staunch supporters of everything worth supporting has been added to.

Our sophomores are quite a versatile lot. This history would be incomplete without a list of a few of our most outstanding pastimes and talents. Week-ending is the favorite hobby and the one which scores A with the greatest number of sophomores. Letter-writing has found its place on the list of popular activities. A number of classmates have had us all practically in "stitches" knitting and crocheting away their time. Perhaps the most intricate and original feat is performed by "Stupe" since she has acquired the distinction of being the class's best elevator operator. She entertains with weekly tours from third floor to the first, and back again. A thrill in every ride is guaranteed.

Lest you think us utterly devoid of serious thought: the gold and white aspires to swing high up into the blue for the realization of our dreams and the carrying out of the idea of Wesleyan and of the Golden Heart class of '39.

Freshman Class

HAIL! HAIL! WESLEYAN, here comes the class of 1940. We closed the gates upon your first century, and here we are, ready to make the second hundred years even more eventful than the first.

We began our career with cotton stockings, flying shirt tails, and onion necklaces. These, said the most wise sophomores, would serve to bleach our proverbial freshman green to a paler hue. In spite of all the excitement of rat week, we stopped long enough to wonder how the class of 2040 would be ratted. Having decided that a period of a hundred years would be a much better bleach than an onion, we are now convinced that our great-great-granddaughters won't need to be ratted. By that time they will be as wise as any sophomore. While we were on the subject, we drew some more conclusions.

"Freshmen may improve by age," we said, "but of this we're sure: Junior sisters could not be better, even with a century in which to practice the art of sisterhood."

On Thanksgiving day we showed the world that freshmen aren't so bad. We took to that game of soccer so well that we surprised even ourselves. We were unconquerable until the senior team refused to be routed from their championship by mere upstarts like the freshman soccer team. We lost, but then there are three more years to conquer, and should we fail again, we can always rely upon that soccer team a hundred years from now.

DOROTHY ROUNTREE

The Thanksgiving banquet was a highlight in our short career. It was there that we found what it really means to be a Wesleyanne. We smiled through tears at the songs that were sung and didn't mind who saw us. On that Thanksgiving day we were truly thankful that our Wesleyan days were ahead of us instead of behind us.

Stunt night came and still we won no fame—rather, no fame as some measure it. Somebody's got to lose, and we do think we hit the dust nobly. Our author and our actresses did their very best—and really it wasn't such a great defeat. Who will know a hundred years from now that, as freshmen, the class of 1940 lost on stunt night?

Hail! Hail! here comes the class of 1940. We've much behind, but more ahead, and there's nothing that can stop us now that we have started. We have more than our share of pep and enthusiasm and fun. We'll make history for you, dear Wesleyan. Just wait another hundred years and see.

Film Flashes

Scenes from the Convocation and pageants, commemorating the centennial year of Wesleyan, 1936.

At the top are seen the speakers and academic procession at the Convocation in October.

Center, the temple in the last episode of the pageant based on a speech in favor of education for women, given by Daniel Chandler. This was presented in the spring of 1936.

Dance depicting the triumph of education.

Procession of representatives of the Phi Mu and A. D. Pi sororities in all colleges today. In the center are representatives of the charter members of the organizations.

Centennial Celebrations

Glimpses of "The Fountain of Light," pageant given in the fall.

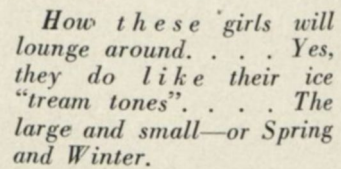

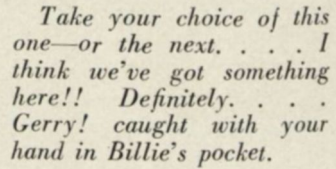

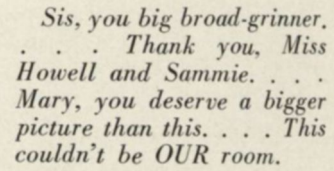

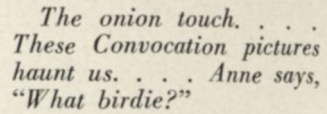

Pat and Mallary pose for their dance, the Gavotte. . . . More of the Convocation.

Children representing Wesleyannes of the future. . . . Father Time walks, crossing the bridge. . . . Dance of the Athletes.

*Below, the Dance of Beauty . . . Dance of Humor . . . and the Minuet. . . .
The nine Muses pose gracefully. . . . A sextet from the Minuet.*

Again, the Convocational procession. . . . Forming the line.

Gleanings

Whatdya mean? . . . Just can't keep her feet on the ground. . . . We seniors who didn't believe in signs. . . . Bet somebody slipped here.

This has us stumped, too. . . . Did you call your shot, Dot? . . . We ought to be in this picture somewhere. . . . You DO look cute Hal. . . . Mrs. Akers is behind the flowers.

What. late, Miss Chaplin? . . . Probably some athletic bunch. . . . Just anybody can't do this. . . . Now, Margaret, are you SO surprised?

Oh, you bad girls. . . . These benchwarmers look cold. . . . Such modern resourceful girls! . . . There's something fishy about this.

Juniors and seniors mixed, between classes. . . . Don't tell us, let us guess who this is. . . . Gladys and Jane taking time out.

You A. A. girls are so cute! . . . Birch and "Hal" at the wrong end of the horse. . . . Mamma, whose hands are those?!

Just four cocky freshmen. . . . Behind the scenes at Centennial practice (the two chorus girls are Nina and "Benny"). . . . Painful "rat" days.

All dressed up and somewhere to go. . . . Miss Bartlett and that Pepsodent smile. . . . These freshmen do have heavy burdens to bear. . . . Uncle Eli, the cleaner-upper.

Just one big happy family. . . . The challenging horde.

Short Subjects

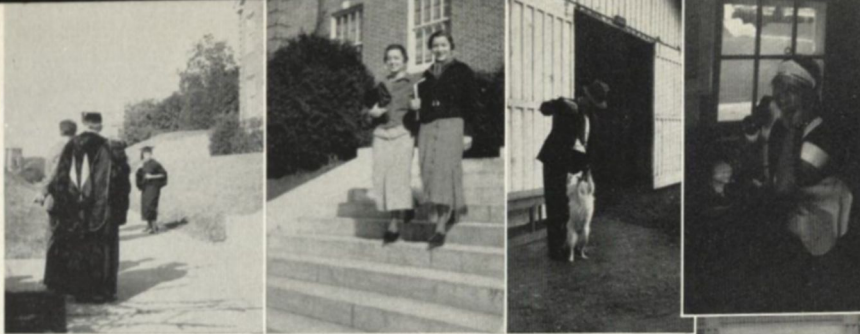

Working hard today, Israel? . . . Jenny with that bride-elect smile. . . . Maybe you have something there, but we can't see it. . . . After-Sunday-dinner walk. . . . A knowledge sandwich: the library back of her and books in front of her.

Coming, or going, or posing, Parky? . . . Pssst, Martha, your mouth's open. . . . Bet they made money here. . . . Marjorie seems to be looking for a worm. . . . How about a good hearty laugh, Percy?

In the background lies Wesleyan. . . . Did he say he loved you, Hanson? . . . Lucky and Old Gold Wadley.

Now, Mr. Steppe, give the little girl a great big hand. . . . This must be right after chapel.

The back of this looks like Dr. Rosser. . . . They smile as they come OUT of class. . . . There's something wrong about this picture. Oh, yes, should be a horse with Mr. Steppe. . . . Is that call for me, Mary?

I'll bet this one's good. . . . "Hal," the staff model, showing just a wee touch of VETERROPT strain. . . . Doesn't this look sweet and simple? . . . The broom's as big as George.

Week-end exodus! . . . The same.

Up the steps of knowledge. . . . How can they sit after a ride?

Pigeons on the grass, alas. . . . One-hoss chaise.

What the Birdie Saw

Wesleyan's only ear muffs. . . . The smiles belie the studious effect that the books give. . . . That's all right, Pat, you can go to Tifton next time. . . . The burden of the cabaret in the dependable arms of Hattie and Parky. . . . We just said "smile" and look what we got.

That tall thin effect is got with mirrors. . . . "Fresh" smiles for Sunday afternoon. . . . Give baby a bite. . . . Shall we say—Carmen or Madame Butterfly? . . . Such affection.

The less said about this the better. . . . It must be exams. . . . "Spirit of '38 in a sober moment.

How can they face chapel so cheerfully? . . . Parky has mail, but why is Gladys so happy? . . . The big moment in a freshman's life, —walking with a senior!

Dale worried about Rick's hair, which is "gone with the wind." . . . Tenth picture —same girl. . . . Edith pleading not to be shot—her pleas seem to have been in vain.

Just one more class, and then to town. . . . This is just too prissy for words. . . . That after chapel look!

Dot on a high horse. . . . South Georgia gals basking in the sunshine.

Chasers

*Rose and Sarah getting down to earth. . . . Is this a sit-down strike, Helen?
 . . . This is the way we brush our teeth. . . . Meee and my shadow.*

*Let's get drunk and truck. . . . The domestic touch. . . . Aiming or posing, Miss Grote? . . . The pause that refreshes. . . . The Return of the Noble.

*Lick this if you can!! . . . Bicycle built for three. . . . The backward glance.
 . . . That self-satisfied grin-Pinkie.*

*Free advertising.

Conservatory thumbs while we get left. . . . Time's up. . . . This isn't very dignified for college girls.

Dusting out the box. . . . Mrs. Comer pursues her education, a la press and radio. And so . . . to bed.

Peeping Toms on the campus. . . . Umm — but definitely.

Jack Benny wins out over lessons. . . . Bed-time stories.

You can see Mercer on a clear day from here. . . . It's downright immodest — all these bedroom scenes. . . . Getting coy with the candid camera.

Thither and Hither

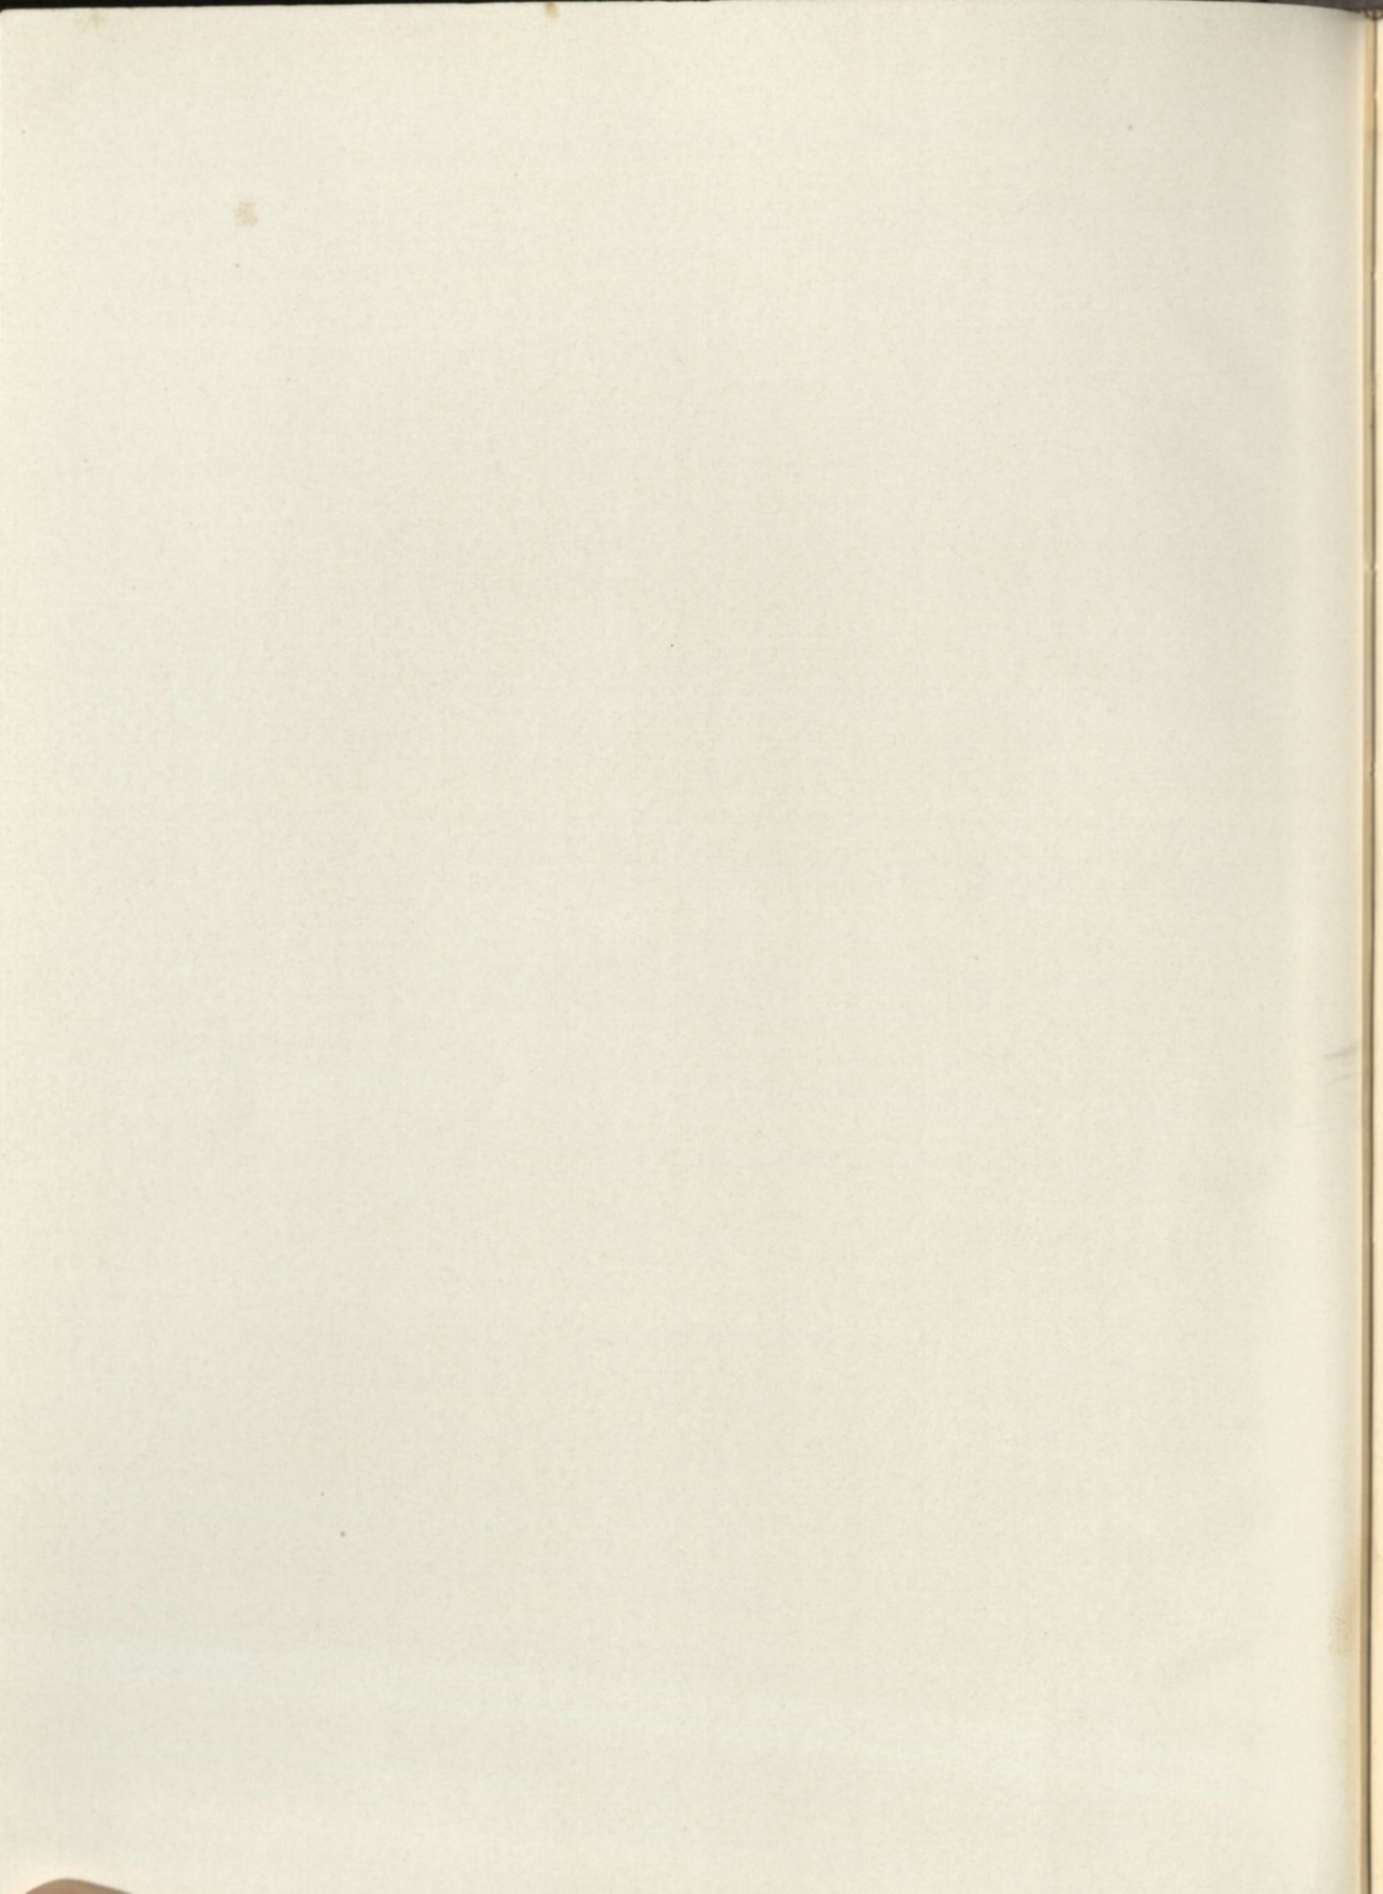

Looks like Sunday afternoon. . . . Most important hour of the day—male-er-mail time. . . . In the good ole summer time. . . . Rae giving home beauty treatment.

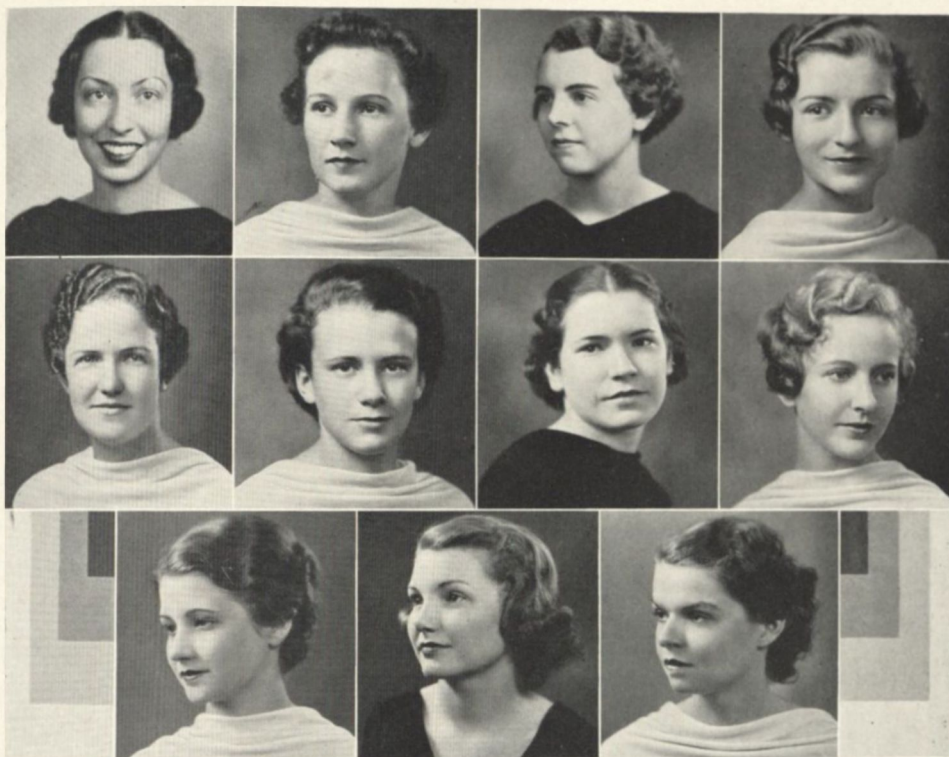

You can't do this after the night before, says Putt-Putt. . . . Madonna and picture. . . . On a bench in the park. . . . In the privacy of their boudoir. . . . Formal picture of the back-alley harmony gang.

Woodland nymphs. . . . "Now what shall I wear to the dance tonight?" . . . Cogburn placidity . . . "The poor barefoot Southerners."

THE 1937 SOCCER GAMES began on Thanksgiving with upsets and continued so throughout the season. In the first series the freshmen licked the sophomores with a 4-2 hand-out. The juniors surprised everybody, including themselves by whipping the champion seniors 2-0 in an extra minute of play.

The second series was postponed almost until New Year's on account of rain. We could have had a Mud Bowl game with little trouble. As it was the frosh slipped and skidded their way into one goal. The juniors just skidded—score 2-0. The seniors had to wade around in extra time again, but finally slushed out the sophs 2-0. Smith and Garrett upheld the soph honor, while Peagler and Culpepper built a man-size defense behind Evans' aggressive forward playing.

THE THIRD SERIES was the game before which the seniors stayed up all night to pray for victory. They were so sleepy the game ended in a tie, but the seniors, spoiled by now with extra playing time, just played another five minutes and took the juniors by 4-2. The juniors took their star forward, Board, and went off somewhere to die, and the seniors took Denton and went on to the tournament finals.

By the time the last game got here the weather was about forty below, but enthusiasm had not cooled. The poor teams tried to put their frozen feet in their pockets instead of on the ball. The people who could stop their teeth from chattering said it was a rib-splitting good game. Some senior finally yelled, "Look, a stove," and all the frosh ran her way, leaving the seniors to sneak the one goal made that day. So the seniors, having weathered mud and cold, took the championship.

The ball is in the air and so are the juniors. . . . Looks like the seniors are about to rush the wrong goal.

The freshmen about to make a goal—or did they? . . . Anyway the ball has disappeared.

Which of the Warrenton girls will get there first? If Pinkie dribbles, Du-Puis will kick.

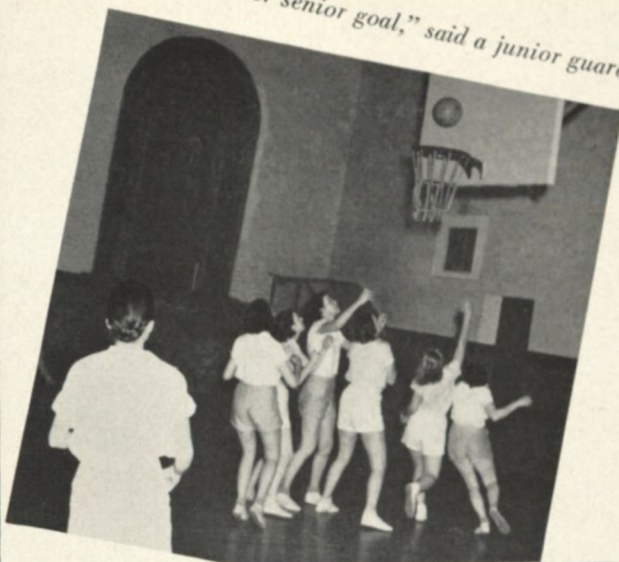

The goal keeper steps up to take a kick . . . too late, girls.

Just another one of Touchstone's corner kicks . . . and into Livingston's hands it goes . . . Well, back up girls.

"Just another senior goal," said a junior guard.

Eyes on the ball—even the forwards don't know whether it will go in or not.

Looks as though about six of 'em shot this goal. Guess everybody is out for blood—or fame.

Has anybody seen the ball? . . .

No, Gallico was right.

Gallico was wrong.

Senior Basketball Team

STARTING OFF THE SEASON with a fast game of ball, the seniors breezed through their first game with a 39-25 victory over the juniors. Dorsey began stealing honors as high scorer even this early in the tournament. Parkie and Nina, with their strong defense, played circles about the forwards. The sophomores nosed out the freshmen by the steady playing of their tall forward, Wadsworth. Bell, first year guard, played a game hard enough to have beaten somebody.

The second series was a race to see which winner could run up the highest score. The seniors captured this race by trouncing the sophomores 52-26. The juniors were a close second, whipping the freshmen 40-30. The points were just going up so fast it looked like the stock market before the crash. Peters and Estes kept their opponents from too big a score, although Graham, freshman captain, charged through the junior defense for 24 points.

THE SEMI-FINALS WAS A FIGHT to the death—but the juniors just gritted their teeth and beat the sophomores so they could go out for senior blood. (Queer how so many people want to attack the “po” seniors.) It was about this time in the tournament that people began to wonder if Gallico was right about women in sports.

Before a riotous crowd, the seniors turned back the junior approach to fame by a score of 20-19. The victory was anybody's guess until the final whistle. DuPuis and Wink had a shooting spell on that made their goal simply draw the ball. Touchstone, guard, provided them with the ball at every opportunity. Evans played probably the finest game of her career, and was ably abetted by Wilkin-son. A hand for the seniors, who have won the b. b. cup all four years.

EMORY UNIVERSITY

ATLANTA, GEORGIA

Founded in 1836 as a liberal arts College, moved to a new and modern plant following its enlargement into a University in 1915, Emory combines the best of the old in higher education with the best of the new. From the beginning this institution has striven for quality rather than quantity in its student body. The University today, consequently, is small enough for friendly, inspiring relations between students and faculty, yet large enough for the broadening, cultural influence that comes from contact with men in many fields of learning.

Emory's 235-acre campus of rolling woodland is located in the beautiful Druid Hills section of Atlanta, six miles from the heart of the city. There are eighteen buildings of Georgia marble and concrete, constructed along distinctive lines of architecture and providing the most up-to-date facilities for study and student life.

Under the Emory plan of dividing the four-year College course into Junior and Senior College divisions, the student devotes his first two years to obtaining a broad background of general information, and his last two years to specializing in the subject or subjects of his choice. The program of each student is carefully planned in accordance with his needs and desires as an individual, with the idea of training him not only to earn a living but to live life at its fullest.

In the four-year college course Emory offers instruction in twenty-six subjects, with choice of specialization in the following fields: Biology, Business Administration, Chemistry, Economics, Education, Engineering, English, Fine Arts, French, German, Greek, History, Journalism, Latin, Mathematics, Philosophy, Physics, Psychology, Public Affairs, Political Science, Religious Education, Spanish, and Sociology. Graduate work is available in all of these fields. The professional schools of the University include Medicine, Law, Theology, and Library Science. The College of Arts and Sciences provides pre-professional training for each of these schools and also for Dentistry.

The University operates on the four-quarter basis. By attending school in the Summer Quarter, which carries the same credit as each of the three quarters in the regular scholastic year, the student may finish his college course in three years. The Emory Junior Colleges at Oxford and Valdosta, Georgia, are integral parts of the University system.

Emory is fully approved by the Association of American Universities, the highest of all accrediting agencies, and each of its professional schools holds an "A" rating in its respective field.
